School water service agreement reached

BY TRACI BONNEY

Finally, some water.

After much debate and many meetings, the Hancock County School District and Kiln Fire and Water District have come to an agreement concerning water service to the school district's new junior/senior high school.

According to assistant superintendent of transportation Eddie Danzey, the water district consented to a school board proposal that had resulted from meetings between officials of both boards. This proposal set a price of $50,000, to be paid in advance, for the work needed to implement and maintain water service for the school, and stipulated that the school board will be reimbursed if the total cost does not reach the set price.

In addition, the school district will not be held responsible for any costs over the $50,000, Danzey said.

The water district also agreed to send all invoices to the school district.

Danzey said another part of the agreement allows a "temporary/permanent" water hookup with the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission to give the school water for construction, testing and regular use until the Kiln water district completes construction of the school's system.

Danzey said this simply means the current connection to a Port and Harbor fire hydrant needs to be made more secure.

In addition, the water district agreed to supply the school with a fire hydrant at the rear of the school property.

"I'm relieved we finally have something done for water for the school," Danzey said. "I wouldn't want us to start the year without water for the school because of something we did, or didn't do."

Michael Haas, board attorney for Kiln Fire and Water District, said the agreement has not been finalized, but is "substantially" settled.

Haas said the board wasn't "tickled to death" with the proposal, but the board members did unanimously pass a motion to accept the agreement.

Skateboarders warned to stay off the streets

BY JANET MCQUEEN

Law enforcement officers in Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Hancock County have been advised by Hancock Youth Court Judge Michael Haas of a state law applicable to youth on skateboards.

"Although we have not had a serious accident yet, the potential is there," said Cpl. Don Ocso of the Bay St. Louis Police Department.

Ocso recently experienced an incident in which a skateboarder trying to negotiate a jump on the sidewalk lost balance and careened onto the street forcing Ocso to slam on the brakes.

The law, Obstructing Public Streets (97-35-25) prohibits obstruction of "free, convenient and normal use of a public street by impeding, hindering, stifling, retarding or restraining vehicle traffic."

The Youth Court requests the first offense carry a verbal warning.

The second violation would issuing a ticket to the offender with instructions to appear before the Hancock County Youth Court on the following Thursday morning. Each skater may be fined $25 or more or be required to perform community service.

On the third violation, the child's skateboard may be taken away and not returned.

If the above procedure is not effective, the court will order the filing of an appropriate petition with possible fines up to $500 after a fair trial, according to Haas.

St. Stanislaus proposes new plan for additional classrooms, offices

BY TRACI BONNEY

The St. Stanislaus board of directors surprised and delighted local tree lovers last week by proposing a plan for the expansion of the parochial school's classroom facilities that did not include the removal of two Live oak trees.

The board proposed adding eight classrooms to the front of the existing school building, instead of between the school and the old gymnasium. The addition, which will extend the length of the current building and face Beach Boulevard, will include several offices.

The board submitted its proposal to the Provincial Council of the Brothers of the Sacred Heart, which will study the plan and present it for approval to the congregation's General Administration in Rome.

In a press release Thursday, school principal Brother Paul Montero said, "These are very exciting times for St. Stanislaus. These additional classrooms will permit us to reduce the number of students in various classes and simultaneously enable us to accept more day students than we have been able to accept in the past because of space limitations.

"After considerable discussion, the board decided to modify its earlier decision to locate the new classroom wing between the school building and the old gymnasium.

"The proposed plan will provide all needed educational and academic benefits and will preserve the two oak trees which are located on the site of the original plan."

Montero was not available for additional comments as of press time.

"I am thrilled," said Charles Gray of the Hancock County Historical Society. "Whatever the reason they did it (changed their plans), the fact that the trees are saved is what counts. "We want to congratulate St. Stanislaus that they are going to be able to save their trees."

Main Street Program

Bay St. Louis prepares to apply for membership in '91

BY TRACI BONNEY

"We're doing a lot of things right in Bay St. Louis."

That was the observation of Mike Cuevas, clerk of the city council, after a visit to Columbus to attend a workshop for members of the Mississippi Downtown Development Association and representatives of cities interested in becoming members.

The association, known as MDDA, is a nonprofit organization whose purpose is to encourage development and improvement of downtowns in cities and towns in Mississippi.

MDDA provides its members with a forum to share knowledge, experience and resources needed for downtown revitalization. It also exposes members to technical services for working toward acceptance in the Mississippi Main Street Program.

This program, which is working in more than 550 cities and small towns in the United States, concentrates on four areas: organization, design, promotion and economic restructuring. It is designed to help communities solve their problems and revitalize the economy.

Cuevas said the city is now a member of MDDA, but is not applying for designation as a Main Street Program member this year.

"The city isn't ready for it yet," she explained. "Although we are way ahead of the game in some areas, we are way behind in others."

One problem facing Bay St. Louis, she said, is that the city is in a mall squeeze between New Orleans and Biloxi. "It's almost a matter of re-educating people as to what's available locally" to boost shopping revenues.

The Main Street program, once implemented, will assist in that process and will serve as a liaison between various agencies in the city and county, including the Bay St. Louis Business Association, the Chamber of Commerce and the Port and Harbor Commission.

Steps the city plans to take before applying for membership in the Main Street program, Cuevas said, include a city-wide cleanup effort; a comprehensive new zoning ordinance and map; an economic development council; and a program to promote the city through tourism development.

"We want to get all our ducks in a row before we apply for this thing," she said. "We plan to apply for the designation in 1991, and we want to have some things in place when we do."

Country music performer calls Bay St. Louis home

BY LIZ HAAS

Danny Roy Perniciaro, a Bay St. Louis native, is making a name for himself in the country music industry.

Using the stage name Danny Roy, he has already recorded one album,"Perfect Combination", and a video by the same name.

Next week in Nashville he will record another album and a video named "A Hurt I Used to Know."

Danny Roy writes and sings his own original hits. His talents also include playing the guitar and fiddle. Tommy Dee of T.N.T. Productions of Nashville, Tennessee, is his producer and JoAnn Levell is his executive producer.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Perniciaro Sr., he has been in the music business for the last 20 years. He graduated from Bay Senior High School in 1968.

Danny Roy Perniciaro

In the 1970s, he played in a band named Corruption with local musician Pat Murphy.

For the last 15 years, he has traveled throughout the west. He recently returned to Bay St. Louis from a stay in Texas.

He spends ten months of the year on the road, but still calls Bay St. Louis his home.

On the inside jacket of his cassette, "Perfect Combination", it reads, "Danny Roy was exposed to country music at an early age. Born in Bay St. Louis, Mississippi, Danny's daddy played country music records by Hank Williams, Jimmy Rogers, and Ernest Tubb.

"This made a big impression on Danny. While still in high school Danny made up his mind that he would make his living playing and singing country music. Music has been Danny's life work ever since."

He said, "In the future, I plan to do more recordings and videos. I hope to have many hit records."

Tanker removed from I-10

An overturned chemical tank truck which blocked traffic on Interstate 10 near Diamondhead for almost 16 hours was righted and removed Thursday morning.

A specialized wrecking crew from New Orleans used air bags to move the vehicle, which had overturned while trying to avoid hitting a pickup truck, according to the tanker's driver, Pete Van Helden of Orlando, Fla.

The truck was transporting diluted sludge from a Chemical Conservation Corp. waste refinery in Valdosta, Ga., to a Texas dump when it overturned around 3 p.m. Wednesday.

The truck was taken to New Orleans for decontamination. A chemical company cleanup crew removed the leaked sludge and the top layers of clay on the shoulder of the road, which had absorbed some of the chemicals.

Plant meeting draws industrialists

The Mississippi Army Ammunition plant was the focus of a discussion last week that left those attending feeling optimistic about the facility's prospects.

In a Friday meeting at Stennis Space Center, members of the Southern Development Association, the Army Corps of Engineers and Army officials at Mason-Chamberlain Inc. spoke to about 25 representatives of national industries and local city and county officials about the plant, which is in the process of being mothballed.

Carroll Gordon, coordinator of SDA, a privatization task force spearheaded by U.S. Rep. Gene Taylor, told the group the Army has said it will minimize the plant layaway and seek a rapid response to private use proposals.

"The Army will be encouraging a rapid start-up," he added.

Colonel Stepehn C. Zakrzewski, plant commander, said the Army expects to complete the layaway in August or September and will then turn privatization efforts over to the Real Estate Division of the Army Corps of Engineers.

William R. Matkin of Pass Christian, chief of the division's management and disposal branch, said proposal packages for the plant must be advertised for bids for 30 days after being developed.

Industrialists and officials attending the meeting seemed pleased with what they saw and heard. Industrialists attending included representatives of munitions manufacturers, electronics companies and an environmental services company.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

I am sure you have seen the signs along highways indicating a section has been adopted by an organization or group.

The areas of adoption are usually placed outside city limits in rural areas.

In the near future, signs will be placed in both Bay St. Louis and Waveland as being adopted by the respective city.

Libby Roland, Hancock County Chamber of Commerce executive director, reports she has been in contact with the State Highway Department to secure the "adopt signs."

Her reason for wanting the signs, is because both cities have been maintaining the highway right-a-ways for years and deserve the credit.

It is so nice to see efforts being taken by our city fathers to try and keep our highways and streets clean.

I realize some of the labor is voluntary in one way or another, but someone has to do the job.

I can truthfully say that the efforts of both cities are beginning to show, not that we are where we should be concerning beautification.

People just have to be trained that the roadways are not trash cans. I still feel a few citations would encourage folks to 'store' their trash until they can find a suitable area to dispose of it.

The cooperation of all citizens is really needed in order for our area to be free of litter.

Those who are working towards a litter-free community should all be commended.

On Thursday, June 21 at 10 a.m. at the Bay St. Louis Library, the United States Postal Service will hold a workshop on postal mailing regulations.

This seminar is designed for those who mail at least 50 pieces of mail, and they are invited to come.

Several representatives from the local Postal Service will be on hand, in addition to others from the Gulfport Sectional Center and New Orleans.

This will be a good opportunity for those using the mail services to learn ways to get better service.

I plan on going because, as many of you know, we use the mail service very much in our newspaper operations.

WASHINGTON REPORT

By Senator Thad Cochran

Testimony heard on drug-free schools in Mississippi

Senator Thad Cochran heard testimony on what works and what does not work in drug prevention and education during hearings in Jackson recently.

Cochran, a member of the National Commission on Drug-Free Schools, was in the state to participate in a fact-finding meeting of the 26-member commission. Cochran said it was important for the commission to study Mississippi's efforts to fight drugs in its schools.

"Drug abuse threatens our children's lives, disrupts our schools, shatters families and whole communities," he said.

"This situation need not and must not continue. We're here to find out how to deal more effectively with this problem."

The goal of the commission, established by Congress in 1988, is to identify strategies, programs and policies that contribute to a drug-free school.

Cochran said the commission will include its findings in Mississippi in its final report to President George Bush and the Congress in the fall of 1990. The Mississippi hearing is one of a series being held around the country.

The commission is chaired by Secretary of Education Lauro F. Cavazos and Director of the Office of National Drug Policy William Bennett.

"We need to concentrate more on the education of young and old alike so they will understand the serious consequences of drug abuse. We have got to deal with the demand side better than we have been doing," Cochran added.

Historical Society commends St. Stanislaus for new plan

To the Editor:

Our pride in the beautiful tree-shaded campus of St. Stanislaus High School must surely swell to the bursting point with the news of the new facilities that principal Brother Paul Montero announced Thursday.

The Brothers of the Sacred Heart have worked hard to provide top quality education for our youth while retaining a sense of heritage and of the extensive history and beauty of our community.

We are especially pleased that they were able to work out a plan that incorporates the needed building into the beautiful campus without the loss of any of the precious trees that garland those grounds.

We know that those who come here in the 21st century will enjoy and appreciate this beautiful legacy that St. Stanislaus has saved for them.

Return to Bible for solution to crime problem

Dear Editor:

Well, our society has tried everything within their knowledge and power to stop rape, murder and related crimes. Nothing seems to have worked.

As a last resort, perhaps going back to the Old Testament procedures would work fairly well.

What about "an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth?" I am speaking of rapists and would-be rapists upon conviction should be castrated.

If such legal action were made into law, it is my opinion we would have jail cells empty, taxpayers spending less for protection and citizens with less cause for apprehension.

Legislature to return to work on important issue

On June 18, legislators will return to Jackson to finish work on perhaps one of the most important issues facing our children this century.

Funding Mississippi's BEST will ensure that we are able to activate, accelerate and realize our statewide dream for future success by putting the focus on our children.

But unless we act by July 1, that statewide dream will become a lost cause—a lost cause because we did not believe our children meant enough to invest in significant, meaningful education reform.

Can we afford to lose our best chance at the future?

Let us dream with our children, our grandchildren and future generations for just a moment.

Their dreams are for a Mississippi filled with opportunity, proud of its potential and brimming with hope.

Their dreams are for a Mississippi that has a magnificent future, filled with possibilities and promise.

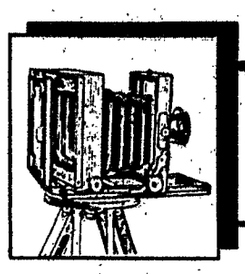

Their dreams are for Mississippians who can achieve any ambition, who can compete with anyone on any playing field, who can reach as high as they can dream.

That is what we must see as we think of funding Mississippi's BEST. We must see what can be, because we know what should be. We must work as if our destiny depended on it, it does and so does the future of our children.

Throughout our lives, we must make hard decisions. The decision to fund BEST, however, is not a hard choice. It is perhaps one of the easiest choices we are faced with. It is extremely clear-cut. It is obvious.

And it is probably one of the most selfless things that we will ever do in our lifetimes. It is, after all, a matter of either daring to dream or shrinking from the challenge, which will doom us and our children to a lifetime of diminished opportunities.

The people of Mississippi have already spoken out. They have said that education is priority one in our state. That is why it is imperative that we give our children the best, Mississippi's BEST.

Look around, Mississippi

The celebration began in late March, in Brookhaven, and it runs all summer, from one end of Mississippi to the other.

The elebration is designed to encourage Mississippians to look around, to explore their own communities, to become more knowledgeable about the state in which they live, to take new pride in Mississippi.

The summer-long, statewide celebration is a part of the enthusiatic "Look Around, Mississippi" program sponsored by the Mississippi Economic Council and a dozen business and education firms and institutions.

Forty-four counties, including Hancock County, cities, towns and villages are enrolled in the celebration—all planning their own festivals, parties, programs and activities during the summer months and even into the fall.

Mississippians wanting to know more about their own communities, and more about the state, will want to follow the schedule of these events. Participation in one or more of the special image improvement events could be a delightful way to spend a morning, an afternoon, a day, or a weekend.

And, it's a good way to learn more about Mississippi, to deepen your own pride in the state and her people.

Board game depicts school in SSC band fundraiser

The St. Stanislaus Band is planning to compete in a concert competition in Florida in the spring of 1991. To raise the money to finance the trip, the SSC Band Booster organization is sponsoring the development of a customized board game for St. Stanislaus High School.

Band director Catchie Choina said, "We are excited about our trip and the chance to compete with bands from other parts of the United States. I believe the experience will be educational as well as enjoyable for the students."

Brother Paul Montero, principal, voiced support for the project.

Marilyn Bailey, band booster president, said, "The customized board game will be known as The Millionaire Game of St. Stanislaus. It will feature, in the center of the game board, pictures of the 'old' and 'new' St. Stanislaus.

"The game is fun to play and will have a historic value. Not only will the project provide needed funds for our band but it will also provide local citizens, alumni, businesses and in general, friends of St. Stanislaus, the opportunity to express their support while participating in the development of a historical keepsake for St. Stanislaus."

The game will bear a slight resemblance to the classic game of "Monopoly." However, Laura Griffith, publicity chairman, predicted "Monopoly" will take the back seat when St. Stanislaus' customized game arrives in December.

Local businesses will be featured around the playing board. Instead of purchasing fictitious properties like Park Place and Boardwalk, players will try to purchase businesses like Hancock Bank, Monti Electric and Edmond Fahey Funeral Home.

The object of the game is to be the first player to accumulate $1 million in property and cash by buying and selling the businesses advertising on the board.

Only 32 positions are available on the game board. Each will be sold on a first come, first served basis. Business owners who want their businesses represented should call Catchie Choina at 467-6689 or Laura Griffith at 467-4896.

Diamondhead swim team to host Gulfport Yacht Club

The Diamondhead Organization of Aquatics Swim Team will resume its active summer schedule as they host the Gulfport Yacht Club in a meet to be held Tuesday, June 19, 5:30 p.m., at the east recreation pool.

Although the Diamondhead squad is only in its second year of competition, the club has additional meets scheduled with Ocean Springs, Bayou Bluff and the Long Beach Yacht Club teams.

Last week in their first meet held at the Biloxi Natatorium, the Diamondhead team captured 15 first place, 12 second place and eight third place finishes.

"We had some fine performances by several of our swimmers," said Coach Lonnie Ray. "Tres Prats won all his races in the 17-18 Division including the freestyle, backstroke, and breast stroke. So did Brandy Favre who won all of her events.

"Our relay teams also did very well. Every relay team except one finished first in their events."

Over the last few years, there has been a community effort to form a swimming team, which did not have much success until last summer.

The team has only 25 swimmers, but competes in all divisions including the 6-and-under, 8-and-under, 9-10, 11-12, 13-14, 15-16, and the 17-18 categories.

"We would like to have more swimmers on our team," stated Ray. "Some of the larger teams like Bayou Bluff have over a hundred swimmers."

Ray said the team, composed of Diamondhead members and their guests, practices twice a day at 9:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

"Our Diamondhead team participates in a meet on almost every Tuesday, so we have a full schedule ahead of us," said Ray.

"If anyone is interested in joining the team, they need to come to the pool when we are practicing so we can see how they swim."

A graduate of Bay High, Ray is on an athletic scholarship at Delta State University where he broke the school record in the 200-yard butterfly this past season.

Ray also made the All-Conference squad this year. Delta State competes in NCAA Division II and is the only college in Mississippi that fields a swimming team, which means the team travels long distances to Arkansas, Tennessee, and Florida to face other opponents.

Reflections

On Life

By Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

Nation of Islam revisited

The Black Muslims had a bad image in the late sixties and early seventies when they spoke openly of whites as blue-eyed devils and left a lingering flavor of black racism wherever they transversed.

Their statement of beliefs appeared weekly on the back of their strongly biased newspaper, "Muhammed Speaks," raising the hackles of whites, Christians, Jews and sundry.

Elijah Muhammed's son changed most of the negative side of that image by the mid-seventies by eliminating offensive references to whites and Christians. Louis Farrakhan's is the sole voice which at times still seems strident to Whites, Christians and Jews.

However, through it all, the last two decades have witnessed some admirable constants among the Black Muslims, now known as the Nation of Islam. Impeccably dressed (bow ties et al), free of cigarettes, alcohol and other drugs, they have always been a symbol of strong black manhood.

Also more than any other force or agency in the country, they have succeeded in reducing crime and especially the drug traffic in our biggest cities.

Off and on, authorities in various cities have allied themselves with the Nation of Islam in a concerted effort to eradicate drugs. Seeing how the Muslims are still succeeding in their never-ending campaign against durgs and crime, officials are once more turning to them in increasing numbers.

A very recent case found the First A.M.E. Church of South Central Los Angeles worshiping in a Muslim mosque, then receiving the Muslims to worship in their church. They did not convene to discuss faith and doctrine, but, in the words of the pastor, Rev. Cecil Murray, to "ask what we can do jointly to help take our community back from drugs and crime."

What Rev. Murray is doing in Los Angeles, progressively more leaders, lay and cleric, will have to do around the country—and quickly. It is no accident that more than 1,000 men, including many former gang members, have recently joined the Nation of Islam. Of course, it is a matter of black pride, a thing which Farrakhan displays defiantly in the face of the white majority.

Yet, it is much more than black pride. It is clearly solid man values which the Muslims espouse, preach with almost fanatical conviction and live out proudly in their everyday lives. Even gang members, criminals and other street people detect the genuine ring of their rhetoric because it is backed up by deeds.

While we Christians are quite convinced that we have the truth as handed down by God through revelation, we are obviously missing the boat in our patent failure to control drugs and crime in our communities.

"Grace builds upon nature," we say in theology, but the Nation of Islam are the ones who are actually bringing this dictum to life by instilling common-sense human values.

We need more than a little of their staunch convictions, their powerful words of persuasion, their Spartan way of life, and their practical plan of attack on drugs and crime.

Now is the time for all women and men of good will to join together as one in studying the deadly blights of drugs and crime, in devising plans and strategies to combat them at all levels, in pooling the means and resources necessary for the fight, and in attacking the enemy without slack or compromise.

Civic officials and leaders, rabbis, ministers and priests ar learning the hard way that no religious community or secular community has a monopoly on success in fighting drugs and crime.

Navy master chiefs to convene at Stennis

A three-day conference of Navy master chiefs will convene at the Stennis Space Center June 19-21. They represent major Naval Oceanography Command units from the United States, Euope and Asia as well as Navy training and staffing activities and the Oceanographer of the Navy's office in Washington, D.C.

The conference will address training, staffing, career progression and other issues affecting the future of Navy enlisted oceanography and weather personnel.

Wagner simulcast concludes Thursday

Richard Wagner's Ring cycle concludes Thursday, June 21, at 7 p.m. with a stereo simulcast of "Gotterdammerung," on Mississippi and PRM.

In Gotterdammerung, Siegfried unknowingly betrays Brunnhilde and pays with his life. Brunnhilde, still in love with Siegfried, makes the ultimate sacrifice, and by doing so, restores the purified gold to the Rhine.

To take advantage of the stereo simulcast, viewers should tune their televisions to ETV and turn the volume down, then tune their stereos to PRM and turn the volume up.

YOUR BONES MAY BE DISSOLVING.

OSTEOPOROSIS CAN ROB YOU OF BONE MASS SILENTLY, WITHOUT PAIN, WITHOUT WARNING SIGNS.

"Not me," you say? You may think osteoporosis affects only the elderly. Think again. It can strike anyone of any age, any race. If you're a woman over 30, you are especially at risk. Three out of four women fall victim to the disease. You can feel fit and healthy, even as your bones dissolve away. By the time you feel its effects, osteoporosis is already at a dangerous stage. Risk of fracture and painful, sometimes disfiguring complications can be well advanced.

The damage osteoporosis does can't be entirely undone, but the disease itself can be arrested and reversed. Catch it early enough, and you've got a good chance of avoiding crippling complications, too.

CALL FOR YOUR SCREENING, TODAY.

Ordinary X-rays can detect bone loss usually only after 30-40 percent of the bone is already gone. The SMH Osteoporosis Screening and Treatment Program employs leading-edge technologies to spot the disease in its earliest stages. No preparation is required for the screening. No shots, no probes, no discomfort. You remain fully clothed. It takes only minutes.

Dr. Mark C. Lueg, who developed the SMH Osteoporosis Screening and Treatment Program, is a nationally recognized authority on the disease. Until recently, osteoporosis was thought incurable. But new treatment methods used by Dr. Lueg now make it possible to stop the loss of bone mass and actually rebuild bone density.

Maybe you feel just fine, but the only way to find out for sure whether you have osteoporosis, the "silent thief", is to call now for a screening.

Meet Ronald McDonald Wednesday at Bay library

Ronald McDonald lives to read! And he's sharing his love of reading with kids in his brand new show, "Bookin' with Ronald McDonald," at libraries throughout the Greater New Orleans area this summer.

"Bookin' with Ronald McDonald" a 45-minute program will be presented at the City-County Public Library in Bay St. Louis on Wednesday, June 20 at 10:30 a.m.

This program is part of the Hancock County Public Library System's summer reading program, but is open to children of all ages.

The Ronald McDonald show will take the place of the Waveland and Kiln programs. Children participating in the reading program at the Waveland and Kiln branches are reminded to come to the Bay St. Louis Library for their program on Wednesday of this week.

Ronald will take children on exciting reading adventures that demonstrate the importance of knowing how to read, spell and use the dictionary.

"Bookin' takes place in the "McLibrary," a fun-filled animated set that serves as a backdrop for Ronald's reading lessons.

Joining Ronald are his friends "Stoogie the Bookworm," and "D-I-C-T-I-O-N-A-R-Y." Both characters interact with Ronald and his young friends to bring home messages about the importance of learning to read. True to Ronald McDonald shows, there's plenty of magic, games and fun to boot.

The show is a goal of the Greater New Orleans McDonald's owners/operators, who realize the importance of an elementary level literacy focus.

"We want to reach children right off the bat, in elementary school. We want them to realize that reading is fun and important. Because of Ronald McDonald's natural rapport with kids, he is an ideal vehicle to bring this lesson to schools," says Mcdonald's owner/operator Frank Slavic.

"Bookin' with Ronald Mcdonald" is sponsored by the Greater New Orleans McDonald's owners/operators and the McDonald's Corporation and was developed in conjunction with "Instructor Magazine," the nation's leading publication for elementary educators.

Further information on the program is available by contacting Cathy Kanady at the City-County Library at 467-5282, Sandra Ladner, Kiln Library, 255-1724, or Karen Peoples, Waveland Library, 467-9240.

Fitzpatrick exhibit opens Monday

An exhibition of work by Bay St. Louis artist Kat Fitzpatrick will open Monday in the first floor lobby of City Hall. Portraits are the focus of the ten-painting exhibit.

"Backgrounds are lush, humid exteriors or cool clean interiors, with the subject always serene. It is obvious that the artist is not an interloper, but a confidant invited to see the subject as they see their own reflection," said Mike Cuevas, spokesman. "The attention to detail by Fitzpatrick is comforting."

A New Orleans native, Fitzpatrick received her BA from the University of New Orleans with further study at the University of Florida.

Already an accomplished painter, the artist continued to expand her talents while living in Tampa through ceramic sculpture. She was commissioned by the city of Tampa to do bas-relief, now hanging in downtown Tampa.

Asked why portraits were her major focus, Fitzpatrick remarked, "I'm a figurative painter and portraiture combines the painting style I prefer with my enjoyment of people.

"A portrait can affirm the good feeling a subject has about himself. A portrait is a better reflection of one's essence than a photograph."

The exhibit is open to the public at no charge, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. through mid-July. For more information call Cuevas at 467-9092.

The Hancock County Library System reports the following books listed on the New York Times Bestseller List have been ordered by one or more of the system's libraries. To check the availability of title, contact the library whose letter designation follows the title: B, Bay St. Louis; K, Kiln; and W, Waveland.

Spanish exchange student enjoys stay in Mississippi

BY LIZ HAAS

Alejandro (Alex) Machado Sanchez, an exchange student from Spain, discovered something about America that many Americans tend to take for granted, that being the great freedom we have been given.

For the past nine months, he has lived with Phyllis and Skip Marsh in Shoreline Park while finishing his senior year at Bay Senior High School.

ALEX MACHADO

He feels the United States is more fast-paced than his homeland. He said he has not had much time to think about his family and friends at home because of all his other activities, such as soccer, tennis, the senior play and helping out around his hosts' home.

Alex traveled in the U.S. for the past two summers with other European students. He has visited several Northeast states, Southern states and has been to California.

He joined the EF exchange program to improve his English skills, which are becoming more and more important for job opportunities in Spain. It has also given him the chance to get to know many other European and American students.

He believes America gives its people more of a chance for economic advancement, like being able to open your own business.

America does not have Spain's competitiveness in job opportunities. In Spain there are not enough jobs for the people.

Alex said his mother has a college degree in teaching and that she cannot find a permanent job.

In Spain, the schools do not offer extra-curricular activities for their students. He has enjoyed his stay and kept busy all year long.

Alex said the people and weather in Spain are very much like the South. The people of both places are very friendly and the weather is mild. He lives in the Canary Islands in Spain, so he is used to the Coastal land and water sports.

"Being on the Coast gave me the opportunity to keep up with my favorite water sports," he said.

He will be return to Spain this month and will begin college in the fall. He thought about attending college in the States, but found a good European program he decided to follow instead.

He will study towards a degree in business and economics, with a small amount of law for the European community.

In this program, he will study in Germany for one year, in London for one year and in Spain for one year. He will go on to earn his master's degree wherever he chooses and will work for the European community.

Alex said he would like to eventually open a business in the States.

He plans on keeping in touch with all of his American friends.

He said, "I would like to thank all my teachers from Bay Senior High School, the EF Foundation, my host family and all my friends that have made my stay here a success."

The EF Foundation brings exchange students from 24 European countries. They match students with families they feel will be best suited for them.

They give the students help and support in their new environments through their monthly meetings with all of the EF students in the surrounding areas.

1941-42 Gulf Coast Champs

The first Bay High Basketball High School team to win the overall Gulf Coast Championship was coached by Clay Boyd. After capturing the "A" Class title, the team was pitted against the six best teams on the Coast in an "A and B" playoff. The team boasted a win-loss record of 25-6 for the season. Among team members from left are, Jack Garriga and "Pat" Murphy, forwards; Leo Seal Jr., center; Milton "Bud" Phillips and Lando Goldman (aka Rev. Lane Adams), guards. Bay High defeated the following teams twice that season: Gulfport, Biloxi, Pascagoula, Long Beach, Dedeaux and Orange Grove. Single victories included Picayune, Poplarville, McNeill, Industrial, St. Stanislaus, Sellers, Kiln, Lyman, Woolmarket, St. Martin, Gulf Coast Military Academy , Behrman, (New Orleans) and Slidell. WEDDINGS, ENGAGEMENTS

Cure-Gollott

St. Clare Catholic Church in Waveland was the setting for the April 28 wedding of Susan Lorraine Cure of Bay St. Louis and Nicholas C. Gollott of d'Iberville. Monsignor Joseph Mercier officiated at the Nuptial Mass.

The bride is the daughter of Joseph E. Cure of Clermont Harbor and Sylvia Bertel Cure of Bay St. Louis. The groom is the son of Phyllis Gollott of Biloxi and Arny Gollott of Ocean Springs.

Mrs. Mildred Means was the organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of pale ivory satin with a high collar of venise lace, sheer yoke enhanced with rows of pearls and sequins and long sheer and satin sleeves embroidered with pearls.

The fitted bodice was appliqued with venise lace and featured a deep v-waistline. The low back of sheer illusion was closed with tiny satin buttons. A pattern of cut-out lace medallions adorned the full skirt and the hemline and cathedral train were bordered with scalloped lace.

She wore a contour headpiece of matching lace and satin, accented with pearls, which held a tiered waist-length veil of illusion.

The bride carried a cascade bouquet of magnolias, roses and silk baby's breath, with highlights of peach sweetheart roses.

Cynthia Rutherford, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were Pamela Cure and Elizabeth Cure, sisters-in-law of the bride; Karen Bourgeois and Truly Gollott, niece of the groom.

The bridesmaids wore tea-length peach mirror taffeta gowns, each with venise lace accented sweetheart neckline, ballgown puffed sleeves and a dropped asymetrical waist marked with a bow above a full skirt.

Each wore a peach floral spray in her hair and carried a single peach centered magnolia surrounded by silk baby's breath and tied with peach moire ribbons.

Flower girl was Ashley Bertel Rutherford, niece of the bride. She was attired in an ivory taffeta gown in a style similar to that of the bridesmaids. She wore a wreath of peach and ivory roses and carried a basket of flower petals.

Ring bearer was Christopher Gollott, son of the groom.

The best man was Benjamin Gollott, brother of the groom.

Groomsmen included Dale Gollott, Arny Gollott and Brian Gollott, brothers of the groom; and John Gatlin.

Ushers were Jeff Rutherford, brother-in-law of the bride; Michael Cure and Joseph Cure, brothers of the bride.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Diamondhead Country Club.

The couple made a honeymoon trip to Las Vegas.

Wallace-Matthews

The marriage of Ann Sanford Matthews and Bert Wallace was solemnized May 26 at 1 p.m. at St. Andrew Episcopal Cathedral in Jackson. MRS. BERT WALLACE

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of white bridal satin fashioned with a fitted basque waistline, complemented by a seed pearl edged sweetheart neckline and short cap sleeves. Seed pearls and iridescent sequins formed delicate floral motifs over the bodice.

Her slightly gathered skirt flowed into a chapel-length train and was finished with an edge of seed pearls. A self bow of satin accentuated the back of the gown. The bride also wore a fingertip-length veil fashioned of white tulle edged with seed pearls that fastened to a satin bow overlaid with a bow of pearls.

Letitia Anne Lowe of Port Allen, La. served as maid of honor.

Serving as bridesmaids were Letitia Jane Haas of Meridian, formerly of Bay St. Louis; Mrs. Thomas M. DePierri of Baton Rouge, La.; Mrs. John E. Matthews of Hattiesburg; and Mrs. James E. Beavers of Roswell, Ga.

SHOPPING UP A STORM

By Katie McGuire Caire

From burgers to beefsteak, with all sorts of other choices in between, our area supermarkets offer special buys these June days, whether you're in an all-out cooking mood or whether you just want to throw something together quickly and get out of the kitchen.

Pork steaks and chops are in good supply now, and at good prices, as are whole fryers, and that perennial bargain, fryer leg quarters. There are also specials on turkey breasts and parts.

Whenever I find extra good prices on ground chuck, I buy in quantity and go on a cooking spree, stockpiling quantities of meat sauce and a meat loaf or so, and seasoned hamburger patties in the freezer for times when I'd rather be out of the kitchen and in the garden or elsewhere—perhaps just out in the porch swing lazing an afternoon away.

So I chop up quantities of celery, onions, bell peppers and other seasonings—or, rather, I let the food processor do it for me, and cook away an early morning or afternoon. I often saute a batch of chicken leg quarters, fill the cavities with cornbread dressing, and freeze in single layers, then transfer to freezer bags for a reserve dinner or supper for unexpected company, or just when I feel like taking one or two out for a quick meal.

At other times, I separate drumstick and thigh, for cooking separately. It all depends, of course, upon the number of diners or lunchers as the case may be.

Hamburgers and hot dogs are the order of the day in many households, along with the peanut butter and jelly, now that school's out and the kids are everlastingly hungry, it seems.

And hamburger can come to the "company table" as well, if you use a little change-of-pace. Here's a tasty "hamburger extraordinaire," a recipe I've used ever since I came across it some 15 or so years ago, I suppose, in "Family Circle" magazine and saved the clipping, using the recipe often. The sauteed onions inside the burger, along with the wine sauce, give a special touch to:

"THE GOURMET HAMBURGER"
(From 'Family Circle')

For every pound of lean ground beef, saute a half cup of minced yellow onions in two tablespoons of butter (or margarine) until the onions are tender. Mix the onions with the raw beef, along with a dash of salt (optional), a pinch of pepper and a pinch of thyme. Panfry in equal parts of butter and oil (about 1½ teaspoons each).

When the patties are medium rare, remove to a hot platter (remember, they'll continue to cook a bit more even off the fire) and deglaze the pan with half cup a red wine. Be sure to scrape up all the pan juices and brownings, and reduce the wine at least by half.

Remove from the fire, add a teaspoon of soft butter, stir briefly and pour over the hamburgers. "And," adds the Family Circle food writer, "for guests, serve on your best china. If just the family (and the kids), substitute a half cup of beef stock or buillon for the wine and you'll still have hamburgers with a different flavor."

* * *

The corn is as high..." as a hill of corn on the produce counters, but far from high in price these days, so let's enjoy fresh corn on the cob, often. And, off the cob as well! I usually cook more than I'll need for a meal, so as to have leftovers for other meals, sometimes an impromptu mix-up of corn kernels and other vegetables, at other times using time-tried-and-good recipes.

One of my quick favorites is:

CORN IN CREAM

4 cups fresh cooked corn, cut off the cob
1/2 cup light cream
2 Tblsp. chopped parsley
1/4 tsp. pepper, salt optional
Dash of garlic powder

Combine all ingredients in the top of a double boiler, or in a heavy saucepan over low heat. Cover; and cook for several minutes, stirring occasionally. (Six servings)

* * *

I also like to saute leftover corn kernels with sliced green onions, with their tops, in a little butter; also to mix the corn with chopped fresh tomatoes and chopped onions, also sauteeing in a little butter, or margarine. And, I especially like:

CORN MEDLEY

2 cups fresh corn, cut off the cob (cooked)
2 medium onions, thinly sliced
2 bell (green) peppers, sliced
3 tomatoes, peeled and chopped
Pepper, salt to your taste
3 Tblsp. butter or margarine

Saute the onion in butter (or margarine) in a saucepan for just a minute or so. Add the peppers, and the tomatoes, bringing the mixture almost to a boil, then lower the fire, add the corn and simmer covered, for a few minutes, five or so. (Six servings.)

You may, if you wish, use two cups of canned tomatoes for the fresh—but why in the world, with tomatoes so delicious and so abundant just now?

If you don't want to bother peeling the tomatoes, skip that step—I often do, when cooking just for me, as I like the peels and skins of vegetables.

* * *

I usually leave the skins on those little new potatoes, for example, whether I'm cooking them by themselves or with some of those tender snap beans on special at the markets these days. And, if you serve me a stuffed pepper or eggplant or potato or such, don't expect to find the skin or peel left on my plate!

* * *

It's almost a shame to add any touches to the juiciness of the peaches all but spilling over the produce bins, but, here's a tasty version of:

DAIQUIRI PEACHES

6 to 8 peaches halved, stoned and peeled
1/2 cup honey
Juice of 2 limes
Rum
Freshly grated nutmeg to taste
1/2 cup sour cream

Mix honey and lime juice together. Dip peaches in the mixture, than place, cut side up, in a shallow baking pan. Fill the center of each peach with 2 tablespoons of rum and sprinkle with nutmeg.

Place under broiler for 2 minutes, or until light brown. Serve with sour cream. (Four to six servings.)

You may substitute nectarines, pears or apples for the peaches—and you'll find these in good supply also at the markets.—From "More Fast and Fresh" cookbook by Julie Dannenbaum (Ballentine Publishers).

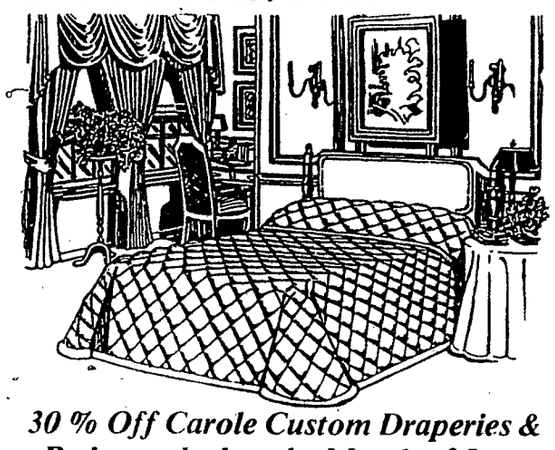

(You may omit the rum, and use rum extract instead, but I like it this way!)
